The Department of Latino and Caribbean Studies invites you to join us for Adelina Anthony’s visit to Rutgers Tuesday April 11, 2017 1:40 - 3:00 p.m. “On Becoming a Queer Latina Cultural Activist and Filmmaker”
Department of Latino and Caribbean Studies
Lucy Stone Hall A-256, Livingston Campus (class is open to visitors)

6:30-8:30 p.m. Screening of Bruising for Besos (2016) with Q&A with Adelina Anthony, film director
Teleconference Room, 4th floor, Alexander Library, CAC, Rutgers University

ADELINA ANTHONY is a critically acclaimed and award winning two-spirit Xicana lesbian multi-genre artist, cultural activist, teaching artist, director and producer. The themes in her work address colonization, feminisms, traumas, ancestral memorias, gender, health, race & ethnicity, immigration, sexuality, land & environment & issues generally affecting our two-spirit/ queer/ lesbian/ gay/ bisexual/ transgender / womyn of color / and people of color communities. http://www.adelinaanthony.com/about

Co-sponsors Center for Social Justice Education and LGBT Communities and the Center for Latino Arts and Culture